

Our Evolving Consciousness

While many people are feeling hopeless and gloomy due to the insanity of the world, our pathetic leaders, and the corrupt economic policies that are throwing the planet into the final stages of global chaos, many others are waking up to find themselves experiencing their light bodies for the first time in their physical lives. As their souls and consciousness release themselves from 3D collective consciousness, they are experiencing the capability to move beyond the physical to see and create the future.

What this means is that on any given day that followed the final passage of Pluto over the Galactic Center at the end of October 2007, you may have awakened and found that you no longer had a heavy heart, felt 500 pounds lighter, and had a new awareness of the world and the environment around you. You became aware that you were no longer focusing on the drama and chaos unfolding, but instead were focusing on the healing and rebirthing of the planet and a new collective consciousness.

For those who are sensitive and intuitive, this awakening released 12,500 years of accumulated karma. This new cosmic power grid provided many of us with energy jolts which, after wiping our karmic slates clean, charged our etheric bodies and released our fears. It changed the energy dynamic for those who did their karmic homework. It released their old karma and enabled them to wake up to rise above their physical limitations during the upcoming consciousness shift.

This transition has not been easy. Many have not been able to make the transition to their light bodies because of their resistance to completing their karmic lessons. That is, their physical, mental, emotional, and spiritual bodies may not have been able to rise above the old energies to meet the evolving but condensed time and space continuum that is forcing our consciousness to progress and get focused. But for those who have been able to endure these cosmic stresses, which have forced us to focus our consciousness on higher ground and release our old baggage, we are finding ourselves on a new evolutionary path. By no longer focusing on the old, physical, fear-based power systems so ingrained in this reality and, instead, focusing solely on the light consciousness that transcends physical time and space, we are creating the platform for humanity's upcoming evolutionary leap. A new and improved power grid is simultaneously unfolding and our light bodies are moving forward and in sync with these transformative energies.

Our light bodies, when synchronized with the emerging consciousness, are providing the momentum for us to become consciousness surfers in a new realities created by our focused intent. This path is moving us away from the chaos and death that the physical world is currently experiencing as it processes its collective karma. Many of us are part of this unfolding and will forge the new paths away from the chaos of the physical plane into directions of alternate consciousness systems and realities. Those of us who have faced our lessons fearlessly and made this transition will emerge as the new paradigm leaders over the next twenty years. We will engage in policies that bring balance and stability back to all living systems so that we can function harmoniously and in sync with the rest of the cosmos.

We will employ a collective awareness through light body activation and synchronization that will enable new channels of streaming consciousness. As our consciousness evolves, our physical bodies will no longer be necessary for creating change; our collective higher consciousness will do the work for us. At that point, we can choose to stay in our light bodies or function simultaneously in both the physical and etheric realms.
