

The Crystal Skulls and the Future of Humanity

Rock formations and crystals are the oldest structures on this planet. People physically die and may be reincarnated but rocks live on and carry the history of the planet. They grow as we do but mature very slowly, as our biblical ancestors did. We've never asked the question about whether or not rocks have memory and intelligence. However, in certain environments, certain rocks, such as crystals, grow to great proportions and have been used in almost every native culture for scrying and divination.

Early technology included the use of crystals with many other types of tools but some were unseen - electromagnetics, propulsion, data acquisition and playback systems and storage devices. We are only familiar with the usual wheels, slings, bows, arrows and hatchets. Very few historians or archaeologists talk about the unseen tools probably maybe because they were too complex to be identified up until now. Crystals, however, while used for divination, had other uses as well, which were never identified.

In Exodus, Moses met God on Mt. Sinai--or was the meeting really with God himself? Moses did not see God, and was blinded by the bright light, but he heard God and left Sinai with the physical symptoms of aging; today that might be considered a reaction to radiation poisoning. What was the technology that God used to contact, impress and communicate with Moses? The bible references the many UFOs that followed Moses during the Exodus of the Jews. Could the communications between Moses and God have been through some form of data transmission system coming from a spaceship? Could God's entire technology have been composed of high-tech equipment; run by computer systems, that allowed him to propel his vehicle through space, as well as receive and transmit data both electromagnetically and through high-frequency data acquisition and playback units?

When the extraterrestrial Dropa disks and skulls were found in the Himalayans starting in the mid 1900s, they indicated that advanced ET civilizations were here on this planet. The disks proved that there was technology 13,000 years ago that would rival our computer technology today. And the ancient crystal skulls, in conjunction with the Dropa disks, are believed to have been used as storage devices for receiving and transmitting information. The disks and skulls prove that there were intelligent beings on this planet before our modern history, who had already found very hi-tech uses for crystals and computers; a technology that our computer scientists have only redefined in the last 50 years. The whole issue of crystals boils down to their being the key factor in all computer transmissions and transactions, as they have the capacity to receive, store and transmit large amounts of data. Moses never understand the extent of God's pyrotechnics or his laser and communications technology because the technology at that time was high-tech and was the technology of the Gods!

Around the same time that the Dropa disks were being found, archaeologists were discovering crystal skulls in other areas of the world. A number of Mayan skulls were uncovered, the most infamous being the Mitchell-Hedges skull. This particular skull was scientifically tested and the consensus was that there was no modern technology that could have been used to carve that skull. The skull has been the source of very remarkable occurrences, as described by Anna Mitchell and others. It is believed to be one of the 13 original master skulls with its origination in the ancient city of Atlantis. It is believed that crystal technology, used as a weapon of control, created the very large quake that caused Atlantis to sink. The skull was transported to an area near Tibet for safekeeping, around the same area where the Dropa skulls were found, before the island toppled.

So what does this all mean for us? And why the re-emergence in the last half-century or so of so many ancient crystal skulls? Is it happenstance or is there an intelligence guiding their discovery? Frank Loo was driven to quit his full-time job and find the Himalayan skulls. And suddenly, craftsmen are carving crystal skulls for a consumer population that is being driven to buy! Why? Because crystal has memory which becomes very focused when carved into a skull formation!

We are facing what has been referred to by many cultures as “the end times”. The skulls have always been with us but they have not been seen. But now, in these very fragile times, they have a story to tell that must be spread to the far reaches of the planet. The story deals with transformation, spirit, and our history. Symbolically the skull represents the higher mind that survives once the body is gone. It is undying matter that has been used in alchemy during the process of transmutation. It is the seat of cosmic intelligence as well as our life force. And now, we MUST get in touch with our history to know our future. The oldest storage device on this planet is crystal and the best receptacle for receiving intelligent information is the skull!

We have a choice to make in the next few years, as our cosmic paths will split very soon. The choices involve breaking away from the technology that has been used to control us and, instead, using it for the betterment of humanity, or staying in the current paradigm of master-slave; with us in the role of slave. The crystal skulls can and will show us our direction, if we let them. They can show us the past and direct our higher selves to the future. They can show us “the truth”. They are vehicles of information and images that have been stored for ages. They can also serve as a source for channeling. There is no one that I’ve met, currently working with skulls, who hasn’t been transformed by them, myself included. They enter your dream state and show you alternate realities; they give you clues to your humanity and the nature of God. They even bring surprises into your life! In conclusion, the skulls are a tool for today for those who want to know the truth. They are not for the timid as their message can be very unsettling and frightening. But the truth is always unsettling when you live in a matrix.

In conclusion, God’s appearance on Mt. Sinai was a smokescreen, if it was God at all. My first experience with my skulls occurred as a dream that showed the master skull being held prisoner somewhere in a French fortress. Its name was IHHE, one of the computer generated names for God. If you are looking for a way out, you are not alone. We have all been prisoners and the skulls are now giving us an opportunity to look, listen and plan our escape.
