

The Legacy of the Gods
Dawn Abel, M.A, M. Ed

Last year I spoke of the sacred geometric sites that our ancestors built to establish and enhance communications with the Gods, and the objects of reverence that existed within these sites; both geometric and electromagnetic. I also spoke of the genetic manipulation by the Annunaki, beginning in ancient Sumer, which evolved into class hierarchies with the more refined lineages making up the royal families and priesthoods. These lineages were privileged to have frequent contact with the Gods.

This year, I will explore the legacy of the Gods -- that is; the result of the technology that they developed, and which they continue to use today-- through a select group-- to maintain power and control over the masses. The technology falls into the categories of electromagnetics, genetics, and subtle energies. Genetic and electromagnetic codes are currently under the control of scientific organizations, many of which are funded by covert government programs. Subtle energies are also controlled, to some extent, by covert government programs. These subtle energies are meant to influence the subconscious mind but are sometimes recognizable by the conscious mind and the five senses.

The codes for manipulating many of the subtle energies, however, remain predominantly under the control of the ancient priesthoods that evolved into the Hebrews and the Freemasons, although the codes have been discovered and broken, to some degree, by many spiritual and scientific groups. The Egyptians, and later the Hebrews, held the codes of the Kabalah, also known as the Tree of Life. The Kabalah is the master key to the evolution of human life and to the creative God source. Later these codes fell into the hands of the Freemasons, who fought within their own folds for power and control of the codes. The Freemasons were made up of many royal lineages and political figures who banded together to protect the codes for their own self interests, and then later, for the purpose of keeping the Pope from gaining further power and control in Europe.

However, as power and control are imperative for any God force or organization that wants to maintain power, we are currently finding, as a planet, that we are all subjects of a very ominous, globally controlled agenda. We now have Freemasons in roles as politicians, warring against the oldest of tribal clans in the cradle of civilization, for dominion on Earth. These masons use conventional technologies in their wars but also continue to use the original knowledge and technologies behind the scenes, to accomplish their purposes and to keep the rest of us in the dark.

Modern technology built upon this sacred knowledge consists of biogenetics, hardware, software, harmonics, frequency modulation, data acquisition devices and transmission devices. However, some of this technology has also resurfaced in its original forms as crop circles, sacred music and crystal technology.

The crop circle is a formation generally composed of geometric patterns, either designed by unknown forces or by people being influenced by the same forces. Investigators believe the unknown formations to be data systems or programs that manifest through some sort of frequency modulation and patterning.

To understand their meaning they must be analyzed or perhaps, as some believe, their purpose is to subtly influence us on a subconscious level. These formations have been explained away as hoaxes, but the fact remains that even the humans who have admitted to designing some of these formations have said they were compelled to create them. While the identified formations seem to have a psychological impact on some who visit and investigate them, the extraterrestrial formations carry their own biological signature, as verified by investigators and scientists.

Another subtle energy is the kind that makes specific use of harmonic scales. In its most spiritual form, it is the basis for the Kabbalah, also known as the Tree of Life, which guards against intruding negative forces. In its most healing form, it is used in music to elevate the spirit and raise the body's immune system. Three years ago at this conference, Jacotte Chollet presented medical results, which proved that her channeled synthesized music healed at the cellular level. However, in its darkest form, harmonics serve as the basis for the military's high-frequency active auroral research project, otherwise known as HAARP, a frequency based sonar program that maims or kills when programmed to its selected target.

Other technology, such as crystals, holds or stores information. Crystals serve as the main component for computerized information devices. They also act as acquisition and transmission devices. That is why synthetic crystals are manufactured in bulk for use in computers. When laypeople buy crystals, they generally do so for their beauty or because possibly they feel drawn to their mysteries and messages. These messages may well be historic and prophetic information that the crystals have received and stored throughout their existence. In the last century, some of the oldest crystals known to humankind have manifested in the form of skulls. Again, the consensus is that these storage units contain important information about our past, our lineage, and even our future, which must now be integrated into our consciousness. And our computers certainly have allowed access to remarkable amounts of information, which only thirty years ago, was not available to the lay public.

Crop circles, harmonic music, crystal technology, the Kabbalah, and every other spiritual tool that has either reinvented itself or manifested over the last 40 years are here to supply us with information needed to understand what has come to be known as the end times, as prophesized in native teachings and in the bible. Native teachings tell us that we are on the verge of experiencing a major split in time and consciousness that will either propel us into a new dimension of respect for ourselves, humanity and the Earth, or alternatively, imprison us in the not-so-new and imposing world order of master-slave. The layperson has a choice to make. The control groups, known as Gods and institutions, would like to make the choice for us.

From the control group side, we are currently being targeted through technology and subtle energies to perceive and experience war, plague, poverty, death, destruction, fear and scarcity. The goal is for us to live in constant terror, under scarce survival conditions, which turn our waking environment into a living prison. Those who buy into this paradigm, contending that the old sacred tools are just gimmicks or hoaxes, are in for a big surprise when the six-sided bubble bursts.

To fully explain the extent of this technology, and the legacy of those who depend on it for control, I will refer to the cult film, The Matrix, throughout the remainder of this paper. The Matrix serves as an allegory for our current planetary condition, and gives us an explanation of these technologies in their most modern forms, that is; how they are being used both for and against us. It illustrates our own responsibility toward awakening and using the sacred tools to trigger our own cosmic codes.

It shouldn't come as a surprise that The Matrix and its follow-up, Matrix Reloaded, have become cult movies. The simple fact is that people here on this planet are starting to wake up from their own long programmed sleep. The hardware and software used to program us are the machines of ageless institutions whose sole purpose has been to brainwash us with specific belief programs that limit our choices. The Matrix movies raise many questions about God, our group reality, our individual reality and our legacy; the biggest question being, "who is really in control and what, if anything, can we do about it?"

Shamans understand this and have learned to discern truth by relying on their inner voice rather than listening to the noise presented on the outside --the noise of invading and intruding western institutions constantly telling them how to live, breathe, think, pray, behave, and conform to rigid and unnatural social mores and laws. Their concept of God, power, and a higher force is much different than what we've been programmed by our institutions to believe. Shamans receive their inspiration and direction internally. Western society receives it from the outside. So this dichotomy in perception raises the questions of what is truth and what is the nature of the Gods or controllers who are manipulating our lives and our reality systems? The answers are complex.

We all dream and some are fortunate enough to remember our dreams. We are programmed by western institutions such as psychiatry to view our dreams as preoccupations, fears, neuroses and sometimes psychoses. But many native cultures understand far better that our dreams are the key to reality rather than the other way around. Our dreams show us a side of life that we all live when our ego is no longer involved in the process of maintaining the physical. They show us what is really going on from an objective point of perspective, and they can also be prophetic, helping us to realize our own power and those weaknesses that must be overcome to live unrestrained. Most of all, they show us how we remain bound in a controlled world, and sometimes they even show us how to break through the boundaries imposed on us by others, and mostly by ourselves.

Traditional psychiatrists would have us think that these dreams manifest to show us just the opposite; how we must find a means to control our impulses and fit into the system, rather than break out of it.

How does this tie in with the Matrix? If you take your current reality and your dreams, and transpose them so that your dreams are your reality and your reality the dream, you start to get the gist of the program. If you can accept this, then you're starting to understand the Matrix!

Just who is controlling our waking scenario, keeping us in a constant state of amnesia so that we don't even realize we're walking, talking slaves, feeding a God-driven system that cares little about our well-being? This omnipotent, omniscient and omnipresent system feeds us garbage about the sacredness of the family only to turn and brainwash us into believing that there is value in sending our children to fight, die and labor long hours for such causes as economic freedom, liberty, and so on. In fact, these actions do not liberate us but just tie us further into a convoluted system that benefits only a few and keeps us from determining our own intrinsic values and individual nature! And where are the people who are feeding us this line of code?

Do you see them on the frontlines, or do they, instead, suck your money and your energy and then run, glorify everything that will help them in their pursuit of power at your expense? Now you're really beginning to understand the Matrix. The Matrix is, in fact, a living, breathing machine - it is a political machine, an economic machine, a social machine, a religious machine, a family machine, and any technology that programs and feeds off the people without them realizing it. Our biblical heroes bought into the program lock, stock and barrel. Thus, they were in God's favor, and they even had a book written about them for reference, just in case we later forgot how to behave!

The Matrix raises serious issues about choice, destiny, control, and the nature of God and faith. For thousands of years religious groups fought one another for the exclusive favor of the Gods and their technology. Did they ever consider that there were other avenues of atonement, or "at-one-ment", which did not require fighting for the exclusive rights to sacred sites and technology? Did they ever realize that each and every one of us is "the chosen one" if we can find our own truth? Or were they, instead, programmed to fight each other as a distraction from the real agenda? Are we then all programmed to do exactly what we do and to believe exactly what we believe as a distraction from the truth? Or are there a few brave souls out there who see through the Matrix and ask questions, understanding that there is an element of choice, destiny, control and faith existing within the collective unconscious and even themselves?

Remember the old hippie adage, "question authority?" How did we ever come to that conclusion? Was it a result of programming, or the result of being intrinsically inspired to expand our minds and tap into the collective unconscious? Was the drug culture the result of a generational program meant to wake us up? Do you understand why the church and government are so fearful of those who wake up and ask questions about the nature of God and reality?

Is it any wonder that alcohol, a depressant, is legal and marijuana, a mind-expanding stimulant, is illegal? And do you understand why the ancient tools of the Gods publicly remain so stigmatized in those same circles? It is not because there is anything wrong with them, but because there is everything right with them. They can set us free, help us get answers to our questions, and break the code!

The questions regarding the truth are numerous. Is there a God who created us as part of his imagination so that we think we're living? Are we an early-model program that he can turn on and off as he chooses? Are there those in his favor who carry out his programs for his and their own self-interests? Are his interests solely in his favor alone, for purposes of control and power, or are they humanitarian? Do our lawmakers and church leaders really make laws to protect us or to protect their own positions of power and control over information and technology? Are they part of the programmed hierarchy of God's foot soldiers and agents who get special treatment for doing so?

We are all part of God's program, whatever God is. The God program has many embedded programs that play themselves out; some are useful to some, some to others, and sooner or later some become obsolete. We were not created perfect and will never be so, despite the God program that attempted to create a perfect being and then at intervals tried to wipe us off the planet, either in biblical proportions or by use of his agents. If we were, in fact, created in God's image then isn't he, too, subject to err as we are, and vice-versa? Once here, we gradually mutate to accommodate our new environment. This necessitates instituting new programs to control the mutations, and even aborting genetic programs if they no longer have the desired effect.

But some people mutate too quickly and become anomalies. They do not adapt according to the program. They run amuck and threaten the status quo. Then electromagnetic, harmonic, or subtle-energy mind-control programs may be used to contain their actions but they may ultimately prove to be ineffective. The original program did not account for unforeseen expectations; that is, they lacked foresight in design. So these anomalies somehow manage to stray off the beaten path and even tap into older, near obsolete programs that have not yet been aborted, which take a grand stand every once-in-awhile.

These programs, like the old sacred tools, contain spiritual guidance source code. They supply inspiration through the angel program, the ghost program, the UFO program, or the oracle program. They even supply inspiration from the original crystal transmission program.

As humans, with spiritual guidance enhanced by sacred tools, we learn that we must move beyond playing by other people's rules if we want to graduate from the basic survival program. While we physically mutate by evolutionary design to adapt to our physical environments, we also have the capacity to change our destiny and make our own choices by taking back control of our thoughts, beliefs, and creativity. God is creativity and is the driving force of life! But believing in anyone or anything other than ourselves keeps us a prisoner in the Matrix.

Some people succumb to the spiritual program, and as with most religions, give up their free will believing that a higher force, they do not understand, has more power than they do. But what these spiritual programs really offer is a chance to break the Matrix, not buy into it further! The key to breaking through the Matrix prison is understanding that we each have a role in creating our own destiny if we follow our own spirit, our heart and our intuition, while refusing to play by other people's or higher power's rules. And the old sacred tools are here, right now, to help us if we just look and listen!

There can never be a sacred world if that world is instituted by one God or by one design, leaving no creative choices. We must take off the blinders if we are to break through the program that has us running circles in an endless loop. The Gods are no greater than we. They only think they are and currently have more secrets and information about our history than we do. However, in the long term, we are each "the one" when it comes to controlling our own destiny. And when we realize we are each "the one", with the same purpose of fulfilling that destiny, then we all become one with each other, creating a new consciousness that permanently breaks the old codes and programming. The legacy of the Gods resides in their knowledge and technology. And the secrecy shrouding that legacy is cracking, with the help of some old programs and new programs, which are inviting us to stop, look, and listen, and break out of the circular loop.

To free yourself, you must find the answers within yourself. You are your own oracle and your oracle's sole purpose is to function not as a slave master, but as a guide and inspiration, moving you to new dimensions in awareness, expansion, and creation. If we were made in God's image, then we must be Gods ourselves, no matter how imperfect!

In conclusion, contact with the Gods has always been limited and on "their" terms. Those terms have always been enforced by unseen people and unknown technologies meant to control our choices and options. While the tools and technology have ALWAYS been available to allow us glimpses of the collective unconscious, and while we do have the "contact codes" in our genes, for the majority of us, they have lain dormant. This is due to our lack of knowledge, which has been exploited, by the powerful, to manipulate us. This knowledge has only recently been unveiled to the layperson. Ultimately, the legacy of the Gods lies not in the hands of the Freemasons, our politicians, our religious leaders or our institutions, but in our own ability to take back what is rightfully ours.
