

The Reptiles are in Place

by

Carl Johan Calleman

A few years ago I felt compelled to find out what was the Mayan day-sign of Osama bin Laden. While his date of birth is not known for certain the Interpol uses March 10, 1957. There is also an uncertainty whether he was born before or after sunrise. Yet, assuming he was born after sunrise this would place him at the tzolkin day 13 Chicchan (13 Serpent) in the true traditional Mayan tzolkin count. This day-sign does not come as a surprise given that Serpent is a day-sign that is known for its magical powers and electrifying energy typical of a religiously inspired leader with charismatic overtones. Although by no means all Serpents are power hungry and many have learned to channel their magic to a higher service the propensity for abuse of power is always considered to be there in this day-sign. Given that bin Laden has the number 13 added to his day-sign you would also expect that he would be carrying this potential for an abuse of power to an extreme degree.

Only recently did I however decide to find out the day-sign of George W Bush, born on the day July 6, 1946 after sunrise. The amazing result was that he too was born on the day energy 13 Chicchan (13 Serpent), the same as Usama bin Laden. I am not saying that this is an extreme coincidence. After all there are only 260 different day-signs and so the chance of the two coming out the same is 1 in 260. Nonetheless, it is a very noteworthy coincidence and should mean that George W. Bush would be afflicted with the same potential for power abuse as is Usama bin Laden. Maybe their destinies are in fact then linked. If nothing else, they become ideal targets for each others¹ projections of their own shadow sides.

How about Tony Blair then who went to war in Iraq with George Bush? Well, he is born on the day 13 Alligator, the extreme (13) form of another Eastern sign dedicated to a reptile. Although Alligator is not a day-sign that is generally associated with the same potential for power abuse as Serpent, it is clearly a day-sign linked to it and this maybe is part of the Blair-Bush chemistry.

Recently, a new reptilian sign has entered the world scene, Cardinal Ratzinger, now ordained as Pope Benedict XVI. His day-sign is 12 Lizard, the day-sign before 13 Serpent. While this is a Southern sign and so would be expected to be more laid back and less called to stirring things up than the day-signs mentioned above, the fact that it is the day-sign before 13 Serpent would also indicate that he has a desire to become like the latter day-sign and may occasionally act in accordance with this desire.

A set of reptile day-signs is in place for defending the patriarchal structure against the new energies of the final phase of the Galactic Underworld!